- Browsing activities, patterns, events, and interactions with our Services, including web pages you viewed and links you clicked.

The data collected by tracking technologies does not identify you by name. These technologies generally identify the device you are using, such as by your IP address, or device identifier. These device identifiers may reveal or be connected with you by name or other personal identifier when our systems correlate it with the Personal Information you provided directly to us, so that we can create and maintain your account profile.

We use the information that is collected through tracking technologies for analytics purposes, and to maintain the security and functionality of our Site. When you interact with us or our Services, we and our marketing partners also use tracking technologies that collect information about your activities over time and across other websites and online services, or in connection with promotional email messages or communications. Through use of these technologies, we and our marketing partners may combine automatically-collected and user interaction information with other information collected about you, including information collected by our marketing partners. The types of tracking technologies we use may change over time. The type of information collected through tracking technologies includes device identifiers, internet or electronic network activity, and user interaction information, as well as what content you are interested in or interact with as described above in the What Personal Information Do We Collect? section above.

The categories of tracking technologies we use include:

- Marketing and online targeted behavioral advertising technologies to, for example, provide you with personalized advertisements and other content about the Services and, in some cases, an external party's products and services. Many companies that are engaged in marketing and advertising participate in the Digital Advertising Alliance (DAA) You can learn more about the DAA AdChoices Program opt-out program for website browsers at <https://www.youradchoices.com/> and mobile apps at <https://www.aboutads.info/appchoices>. In addition, certain advertising networks and exchanges may participate in the Network Advertising Initiative. To learn more about opting out of such targeted advertising or to use the NAI Advertising Initiative, see the Your Privacy Choices and How to Exercise Them section below.

Our Site honors user-enabled opt-out preference signals such as "do not track" browser signals and Global Privacy Control. When you have enabled these opt-out preference signals, our Website will automatically opt you out of all website technologies except those that are necessary for the Site to function. Please note that when opt-out preference signals are enabled, some of the Website features may not function properly. You can allow our Website to "ignore" your opt-out preference signal choices in our Cookie Preference Center.

Our Website uses "session replay" technologies, including HotJar, MixPanel, and Datadog. Session replay technologies utilize code to record users' interactions with our Site. Once those interactions are recorded, we can replay them to assess Site analytics, diagnose usability problems, repair bugs, and identify areas for improvement on our Site. Session replays include users' clicks, mouse movements, scrolls, and keystrokes. You can opt-out of session replay technologies by declining "functional" cookies in our Cookie Preference Center. Please note that if you decline functional cookies, some areas of the Website may not function properly.
